

CALLS IT VICTORY FOR ABSTRACTERS

The Real Estate News Says Judge Cochran Over-ruled Demurrer.

The Real Estate News, published in Chicago, makes mention of Judge Cochran's decision in the abstract case of Marion county. That paper says: "Judge Cochran's decision was announced Nov. 2 and so far as it goes is a victory for the title & trust company, although the local newspapers, after the manner of their kind, advertised it as a great triumph for the county board. The demurrer of John Allen, the private citizen, was sustained, but the demurrer of the county board was not. Judge Cochran said that of John Allen as circuit clerk, therefore they could not have been overruled. The first lines of the article in the Real Estate News says: 'The decision of Judge Cochran merely amounts to saying that if the title & trust company can prove everything alleged in its bill it will be entitled to an injunction. If the title & trust company could prove everything it alleges it would be entitled to a constructive mortgage. But it can not prove more than a constructive mortgage; it is feared it cannot prove so much as that it is entitled to a hearing.'"

SAYS ALLEN DID NOT LOSE MONEY THERE

Chicago Only Stake in Card Games At Hupp's Store. "I have twenty witnesses who will say that Fred Allen came into this store and said that he had lost $20 playing poker at a boarding house," said C. A. Hupp, Thurgood, in explaining his side of the story in the controversy with Mrs. A. C. Allen. "The very one of those twenty known where that boarding house is. Poker is not played in my store. The boys play cards but it is for cigars, just as I would ask it to play a game of seven-up for the smoke. There is nothing more. I want the matter to drop but believe my side of the case should be published." "Furthermore, I called on Mrs. Allen at her own request. When I got there she said she wanted to drop the case but could not pay the costs. She asked me if I would pay the costs and I said I would pay the costs Saturday night. I told her I would and I did it. Later she telephoned and said that they were so much in debt that Fred could not pay Saturday night. I told her it would be alright and for him to pay when he could."

ATHLETIC CONTROL CONFERENCE PLAN

Organization of Smaller Colleges Would Eliminate Many Evils.

No action has yet been definitely taken by the minor Illinois colleges looking to the organization of an all Illinois college conference on athletics. It seems, however, highly probable that such an organization will be formed. When Coach Elder of the James Millikin football team, was at Monmouth with his team, he had a talk with Coach Reed of the Monmouth team. Later he talked with Coach Berry of the Knox team. Both were heartily in sympathy with the conference idea as advocated by the local coach. If it becomes a fact it will be through the pushing of Millikin, Monmouth and Knox. POSSIBLE MEMBERSHIP. The Illinois college conference to be composed of the smaller colleges of Central Illinois, will be formed to regulate and control football, basketball and track meets the colleges of the conference. The colleges that will be invited to join in the conference, besides Millikin, Knox and Monmouth are: Lombard, Illinois Wesleyan, Illinois College at Jacksonville, Shurtleff, Lake Forest, Illinois State Normal, and possibly Bradley Polytechnic at Peoria and the Southern Illinois Normal at Charleston. It is possible that Lake Forest and Shurtleff authorities will consider those schools too far away, and will probably decline to join the conference for this reason. Normal schools may be barred because of not being classed with the other colleges. WOULD CONTROL ATHLETICS. The conference would award football, baseball and track pennants each season. These awards would decide the championship in Illinois among the smaller colleges. The conference would place the dates for the opening of all seasons among these schools, and no games would be allowed prior to these dates. It would also regulate the number of hours work men playing must be eligible to membership, as well as the number of years an athlete may play on a college team. Such a scheme would do away with the six and eight year athletes who are no better than professionals. It is probable the conference would allow freshmen to play. The need of reform in athletics is marked in almost all the schools named, professionalism being widespread. Coach Elder is now corresponding with the athletic coaches in those schools and it seems altogether probable the conference will be formed.

FORMAL AWARD OF M'S.

Athletic Board of Directors Awards Them to Thirteen Football Men. At a meeting of the board of directors of athletics in the James Millikin university held Thursday at noon awards of "M" sweaters were formally made to the following men who played on the varsity team this year: William Bell, Roy Hamilton, Leslie R. Taylor, Will Pontington, Ira J. Faye, Frank Markwell, John T. Johnson. The three who played on the team but failed to get the "M" award were Louis Osterander, Harold Mills and Fred Ronton. Osterander registered too late to play in the requisite four games and was in only three. Mills played in two and Ronton in one. The list is substantially as announced in The Review Sunday. The sweaters have been ordered and will arrive shortly after the holidays. They are the regular college blue sweaters with the big white "M" on the chest.

The play will be produced soon after Christmas. The Y. W. C. A. of the university has set Thursday evening, Dec. 12, as the date for its calendar social, at which time the official calendar which its members have been preparing will be put on sale. On Wednesday evening Professor Kaepfer organized a university chorus. It is expected that the chorus will assist in chapel exercises beside making several public appearances during the year. It is also planned that it will give a recital in the spring. The Olive Mead quartet is the attraction at the university Friday night. This is the third number of the lecture course and promises to be a fine attraction.

FAILED TO HIDE THE JUG WITH HER SKIRT

She may have borrowed it and been returning it home or she may have been going downtown for vinegar or molasses, but nevertheless, the jug did not go well with her general appearance and for this reason, as she boarded the North Edward car, she tried to keep it hid in the folds of her skirt. The car was one in which the seats run the full length of the car. All of the sitting room was taken excepting a small space near the rear of the car. For this she was very thankful as she entered, quietly placing the jug on the floor. In some way she could not get the folds of her skirt to hide the jug and while her continued efforts proved in vain the men and women in the car indulged in broad smiles and grins. During all this time the maiden blushed. However she saw the funny side of the affair and when Eldorado street was reached, she boldly and with a smile, "kicked up the jug and vanished."
